Re: Munn Nursing Research Grant

Munn Grant IRB and Project Initiation Policy

Munn Nursing Research Grant proposal authors may go forward with obtaining IRB approval after formally submitting an application for the Munn Nursing Research Grant. However, because authors are submitting a proposal for a Munn Nursing Research Grant that will be peer-reviewed as part of the application process, reviewers may have recommendations that affect the submitted proposal.

If the proposal is funded, the proposal authors will meet with the Munn Nursing Research Grant Committee Co-chairs and a Nurse Scientist from the Munn Center for Nursing Research, shortly after the grant is announced to discuss the reviewer comments, and the terms of the grant. If the proposed project has received IRB approval prior to the notification of grant, the authors will have to submit an amendment to the IRB to incorporate any changes to the proposal that are recommended by the Munn Grant review team.

Munn Grant applicants cannot execute their proposed project, even after IRB approval, until after peer review for the Munn Grant has occurred, a funding determination has been made, and the post-grant meeting has taken place. This typically occurs in May. If proposal authors are not funded a Munn, they may use the proposal or proceed with the study as they wish per the IRB guidelines.
